

ANNUAL REPORT
2007-08

THE LIBRARY

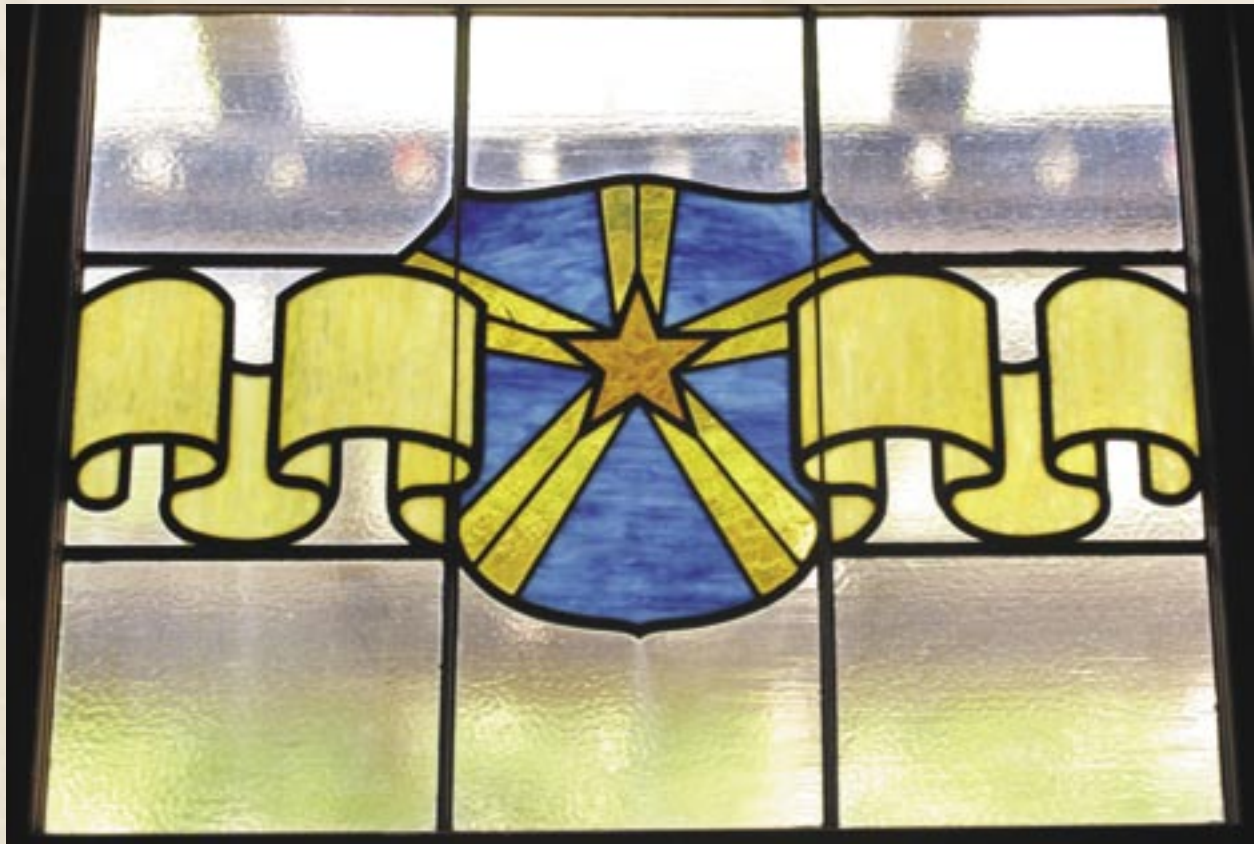

University of California, Berkeley

A TRADITION of GIVING

Shalaya Shipman, on the cover, graduated from UC Berkeley in 2007 with a BA in rhetoric, with an emphasis in narrative and image. She currently serves as a research analyst at CB Richard Ellis, in Oakland, CA, a commercial real estate brokerage.

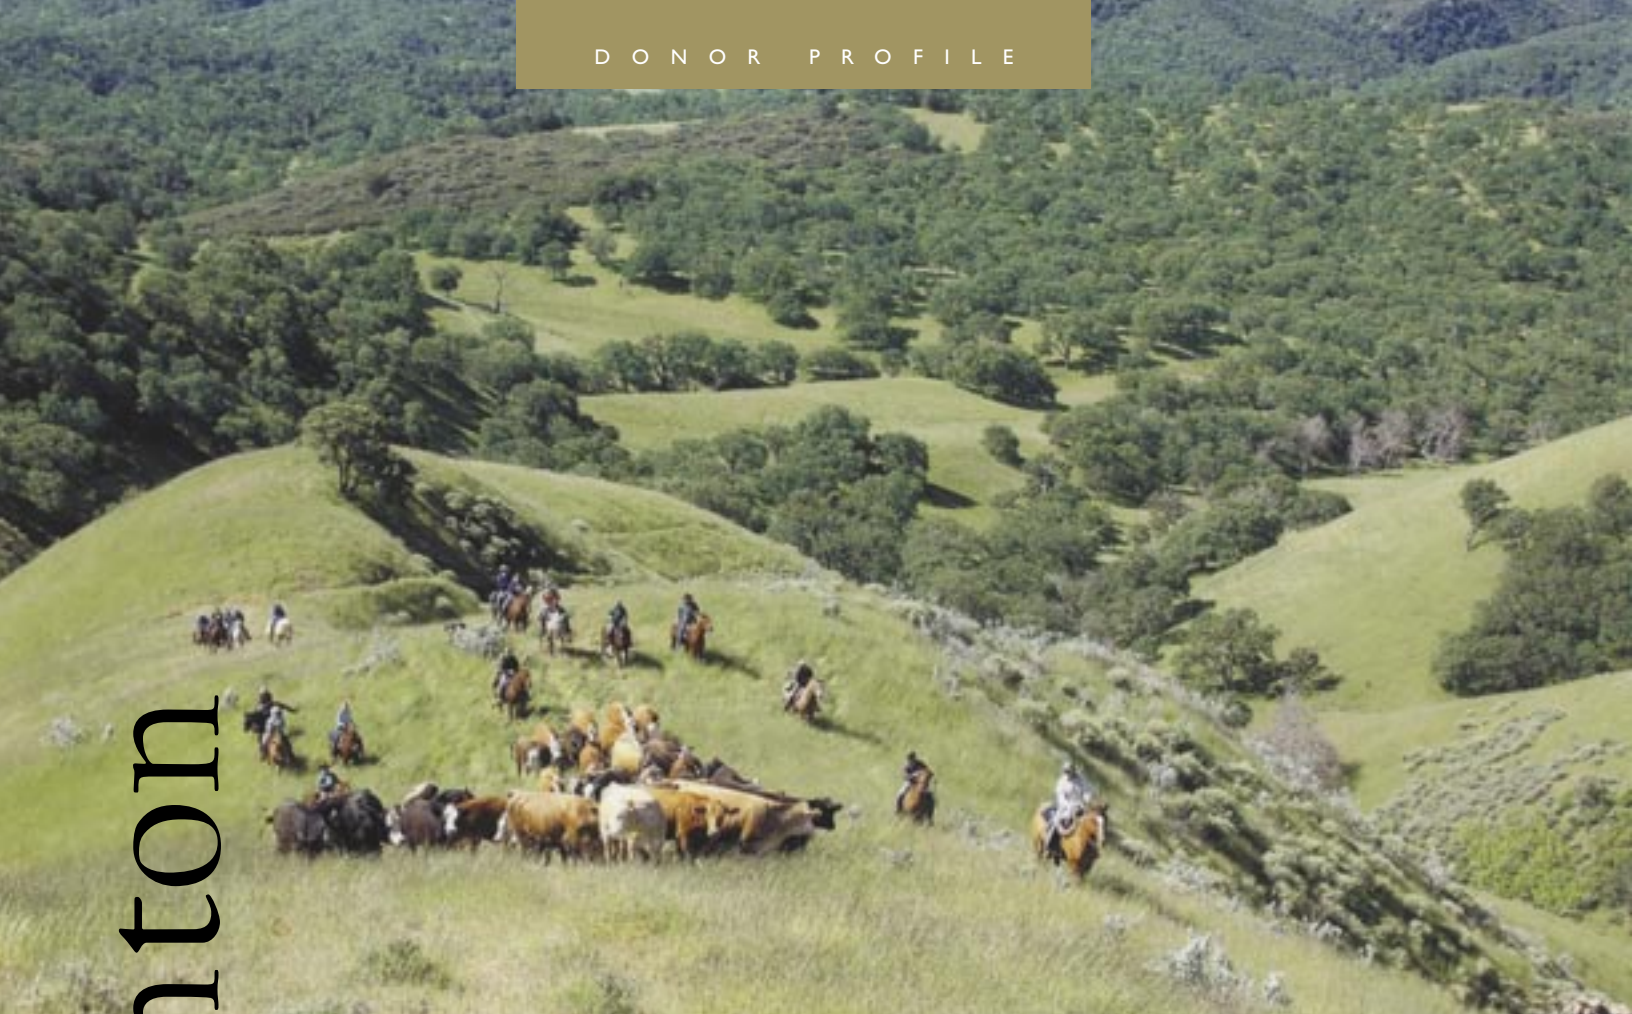

THE LIBRARY OF THE UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, BERKELEY, has been fashioned by many people through many decades. Its present-day stature as one of the finest public research libraries in the world testifies to the power of devoted effort and support sustained over time. The hundreds of thousands of people who have studied and worked here over the past century, and contributed to the Library's collections and programs, have helped to shape the Library's overarching idea: to collect, organize, and preserve the record of human knowledge—in the arts and humanities, the sciences and social sciences—and to make this knowledge accessible to students, faculty, and other researchers.

Those of us who live close to the daily life of the Library are aware of the vast diversity of effort that goes into its functioning, thriving, and growth. The "Honor Roll" of donors who contributed to the library from July 2007 through June 2008 is one measure of this effort. Through your loyalty and generosity, the Library continues to thrive as a dynamic, ever-evolving institution, encouraging learning, exploration and discovery.

Because of our donors' tradition of giving, the Library is able to keep giving to the students and faculty of Berkeley. The forms of information and the methods of sharing it continue to develop as technology allows, but the principle remains the same: to answer the curiosity and inspire the investigations of our faculty and students. This is the tradition of learning shared by each of you—as alumni, as donors, and as friends. With this Annual Report, we take the opportunity to salute a few of our donors who have contributed to the Library annually for at least ten years or more — and to express our gratitude to all of you, for your gifts of every size and frequency. We couldn't do it without you!

James Sinton

Since graduating from UC Berkeley in 1938, James Sinton has managed a cattle ranch in San Luis Obispo Country that has been in his family for over a century. Avenales Cattle Company is a mid-size ranch with 500-700 animals, and Sinton has also established a small vineyard on the property, selling the grapes to winemakers. The above photo of his ranch shows some of his family and friends moving a group of cattle over steep and rough country to a mountain pasture.

As a student, Sinton's favorite library spots were the Reserve Book Room and the Morrison Library. May Treat Morrison (class of 1878), who established the library in 1928 in memory of her husband, had been a friend of his grandmother's. This comfortable, elegant room continues to be a favorite spot with students for relaxation and recreational reading.

James Sinton comments that his sustained support of the University Library stems from his desire to direct his contributions "where they will do the most good," reflecting the fact that the Library's collections, spaces, and staff serve students and faculty in all departments across campus. He has given annually to the Library since 1983.

A well-run library can be seen as a welcoming landscape, one that invites visitors to explore its treasures and to relax in a peaceful atmosphere. Yee-Sen Lee-Wolfe has pursued both sides of the analogy in her education and in her careers. With degrees from UC Berkeley in both landscape architecture ('73) and library science ('74), she has relished pursuing these two different yet complementary interests throughout her life.

With a love of libraries that dates back to working at San Mateo Public Library as a high school student, it's no surprise that Lee-Wolfe has been such a loyal supporter of the University Library. She and her husband Paul Wolfe have contributed to the Library Fund and the Environmental Design Library since the 1980s. Lee-Wolfe spent most of her fifteen years with the Contra Costa County Library at the Danville Public Library, and speaks of the "immediate satisfaction" of the public service aspect of her work there, helping people find the books and resources they need. "I've always liked books, and cherished the pursuit of new knowledge," she says.

Lee-Wolfe currently works as a landscape architect with Wallace Group, an engineering group in San Luis Obispo. In her work there, she is delighted with the renewed focus on environmental sustainability. She notes that a particularly interesting and exciting aspect of her current landscape architecture role is the opportunity to work with multiple professional disciplines, including planners, architects, and civil and other engineers, in planning a new community outside Merced with a build-out population of around 35,000.

Leontina Gallagher

Leontina Gallagher was working on her dissertation on French 18th century culture at Johns Hopkins when her husband accepted a position at a San Francisco law firm, requiring a move west. Once they were established here, Gallagher found that the UC Berkeley Library was the “best library to work on my research, better than Stanford, and in fact, even better than the Bibliothèque Nationale, in Paris! The collection of French materials is immense.” By obtaining a library card as a California resident, Gallagher was able to make full use of the library’s collections. She has been an annual donor since 1986.

More recently, she has used the University Library to research the circumstances surrounding her grandfather’s murder in turn-of-the-century Texas in a property dispute.

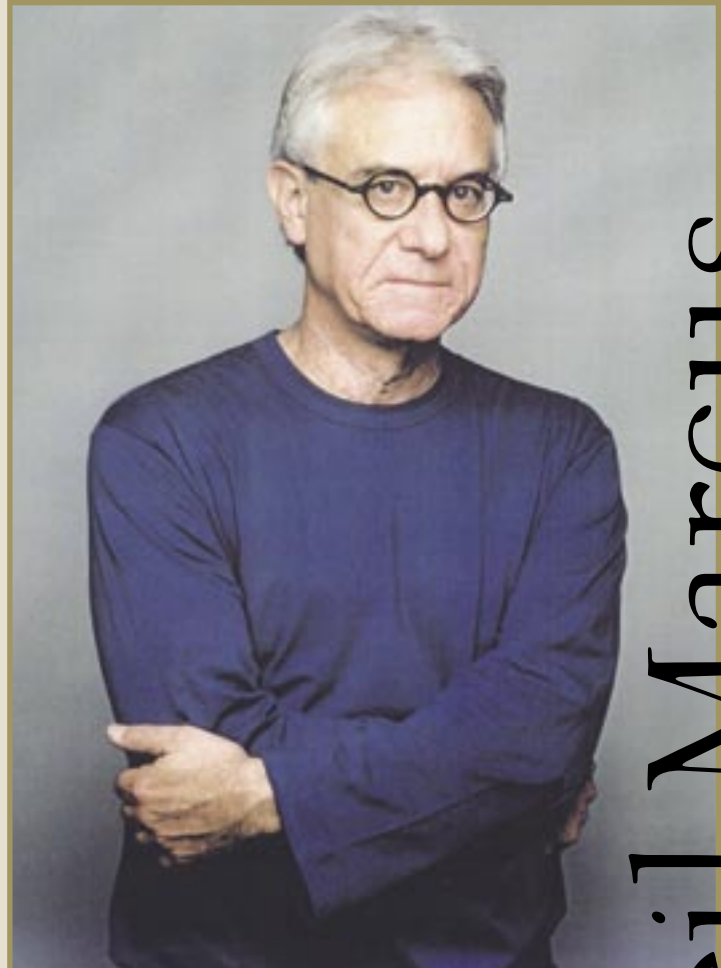

In this process, the availability of newspapers, legal documents and other materials online has been a boon, for Gallagher as for other independent scholars and family genealogists. In the recent past, she says, “you had to be someone important to get access to these records. Of course, along with the online resources, it’s also been helpful to have made friends with reference librarians in New Orleans and Texas, who can assist me in finding the information I need.”

Gallagher calls her loyal support of the University Library “quite selfish! I want to make sure the UC Berkeley Library will continue to be there. It’s a resource not only for faculty and students, but also for the community. Learning is lifelong, and where else are you going to learn, if not at the library?”

“My debt to the extraordinary collections the Library has amassed over the years is immense. I’ll never pay it back.” Noted cultural historian and music critic Greil Marcus (’67) remembers “magical” hours roaming the Doe Library stacks when he was an undergraduate, “one book leading me to another, reading and exploring and writing.” Having obtained a special pass to enter the stacks, which at that time were closed, Marcus felt he was “part of a secret, privileged world.”

As an alumnus, Marcus returned to Berkeley’s Library to research his book Lipstick Traces: A Secret History of the Twentieth Century (1989), which delves into topics as varied as the 16th century Anabaptists, the Dadaists, and British punk rockers. “The book took me nine years to write, and it would never have been remotely possible without the Berkeley Library.” For instance, his discovery of numerous pamphlets and books by the Lettrists, a postwar radical art cult in Paris, was an unusual treasure Marcus says he wouldn’t have found at Harvard, Yale, Columbia or Stanford. “I can’t imagine anyone got more out of the stacks than I did,” Marcus says.

Well-known for using rock music as a lens through which to examine the American imagination, Marcus is the author of over a dozen books, and has been called “perhaps America’s most imaginative social critic.” He and his wife, Jenelle Marcus (’66), have given annually to the University Library since 1983.

WHO'S WHO FOR THE LIBRARY'S ANNUAL DONOR CLUBS, 2007-08

Offering recognition for contributions to the Library, our Donor Clubs are named in honor of influential individuals in the history of the Library and the University. Over the years, their support of collections and programs in the Library has enabled it to grow into one of the world's great research collections. Gifts in any amount are always greatly appreciated.

PHOEBE APPERSON HEARST

$1 million and above
Undoubtedly the University's most generous benefactress, in 1896-97 she provided support for a competition to design an architectural plan for the University, including the construction of a new library building. Mrs. Hearst frequently presented the Library with volumes from her personal collections, many of which today can be found in the Bancroft Library as well as in the Gardner Stacks in the Doe Library.

CHARLES FRANKLIN DOE

Impressed with the impact that the Alexandria Library in Egypt had on the civilization at that time, Charles Doe pondered ways to support the founding of a major library in California. At his death in 1904, he left a quarter of his estate (nearly $600,000) to the Regents of the University of California, for the construction "... of a library building for its Academic Department...." Today, the Doe Library remains a great testament to his generosity and his vision.

MICHAEL REESE

$250,000 - $499,999
One of the earliest major contributors to the University Library, in 1873 Michael Reese first supported collections in economics and politics. His bequest of $50,000 in July 1879 established the Library's first endowment, a fund to purchase books for the collections in perpetuity. The Reese Library Fund is still being used today as a major source of collections support.

HENRY DOUGLAS BACON

$100,000 - $249,999
In 1879, Henry Douglas Bacon, a self-made man and prominent Oakland citizen, feeling that the library in South Hall was inadequate, gave $25,000 to the University for the construction of a separate building, subject to the State providing a similar amount. The Legislature eventually complied. Bacon also gave his book and art collection to be housed in the building.

MAY TREAT MORRISON

$50,000 - $99,999
The Alexander F. Morrison Library was made possible by a significant gift from his widow, philanthropist May Treat Morrison, both members of the Class of 1878. In contributing her husband's book collection to the Library, Mrs. Morrison believed that the books that had been the delight and enthusiasm of A.F. Morrison's life could serve no finer purpose than to stimulate a love of reading in the students of his University.

JOSEPH C. ROWELL

$20,000 - $49,999
A member of the class of 1874, he was appointed as the first full time University Librarian in 1875. Rowell served in that role until 1919, when he resigned and became the first University Archivist, a post he held for an additional 25 years. Under Rowell's care, the library grew from a small, 13,000-volume library to over 1 million volumes in 1935, establishing it as one of the foremost research libraries in the United States.

JAMES KENNEDY MOFFITT

$5,000 - $19,999
A graduate of the Class of 1886 and a UC Regent, James Moffitt was a long-time and generous donor to the Library. He established an endowed fund for collections in 1897 that remains in use today, and at his death, bequeathed the Library his personal collection of books.

ROBERT GORDON SPROUL

$1,000 - $4,999
During Sproul's tenure as its 11th President (1930-1958), the University of California rose to a position of great eminence among the universities of the world. His statement about the Library remains true today: "The Library is the heart of the University... The intellectual growth and vitality of every school and every division, of every professor and every student, depends on the vitality of the Library."

HENRY MORSE STEPHENS

$500 - $999
A beloved UC professor of history, and a key influence in encouraging the Regents to acquire the Bancroft Library in 1905, Henry Stephens loved the Library. When he passed away in 1919, he left the University his 12,000 volume library, a part of which forms the nucleus of Bancroft's collections today.

CLARK KERR

$250 - $499
As president of the University of California, and UC Berkeley's first chancellor, Kerr was admired as an elegant thinker of great intellect. His clear, logical vision of both the promise and problems of modern higher education influenced generations of political and education leaders. He initiated the creation of an undergraduate library on campus that came to pass with the opening of the Moffitt Library in 1970.

DANIEL COIT GILMAN

$100 - $249
The University was still in temporary quarters in Oakland when Gilman arrived to assume the position as its second president in 1871. Just 14 months later, he could report not only the establishment of the University on its permanent campus in Berkeley, but also on a number of important major gifts from individuals, including funds for the purchase of books for the Library.

ATHENA

$1 - $99
A bronze bust of Athena presides over the North entrance to Charles Franklin Doe Memorial Library, dispensing—as campus legend has it—wisdom to all those who pass below her. Goddess of knowledge and wisdom in Greek mythology, Athena is an ideal library patroness, especially at a University conceived by its founders as an "Athens of the West."

GIFTS TO THE LIBRARY are an important source of funds for the acquisition of library books and other materials, the provision of library services, capital improvements, and unrestricted support for priority needs. These gifts enable the Library to continue serving the University and the community. Donations of books and collections enhance the Library's intellectual resources and ensure a bright future for the Library. The following honor roll recognizes gifts received between July 1, 2007 and June 30, 2008.

A Berkeley student enjoys a sunny day, catching up on his reading in a quiet campus nook near Strawberry Creek.

Gifts to the Library • 2007-2008

Facing the Charles Franklin Doe Memorial Library across Memorial Glade, the new C.V. Starr East Asian Library reflects the importance of UC Berkeley's role for well over a century as a worldwide, Pacific Rim hub for students and researchers in East Asian studies. Opened in spring 2008, it was designed by architects Tod Williams and Billie Tsien, and was financed entirely by private contributions. The Starr Library's holdings comprise over 900,000 volumes in Chinese, Japanese and Korean, as well as prints, rare maps and scrolls, contemporary political posters and Buddhist scriptures. The image above shows the fall 2007 ceremonial dedication of the library, which was attended by scholars and donors from around the world.

The study tables are filled with students who settle in with books, notebooks, laptops, music players, and water bottles, taking advantage of the long library hours to study for exams, see friends—and perhaps, around midnight, to refuel with an espresso brownie from the Free Speech Movement Café in Moffitt.

This summer, examples from a hundred years of student fashion were displayed in the Bernice Layne Brown Gallery in Doe Library. The exhibit was curated by Law School archivist William Benemann, and proved immensely popular with students, Bay Area media, and visitors to campus. Above, a turn-of-the-century photo depicting Cal men in their crushed “plug” hats.

Campus and community attendees gathered in the Morrison Library in January 2008 to enjoy a conversation between novelists Michael Chabon (shown above) and Oakley Hall. The event was the inaugural reading in the new “Story Hour in the Library” series. These monthly readings, which are hosted by English department faculty Vikram Chandra and Melanie Abrams, bring readers and writers together in the University Library to enjoy the pleasures of the written and spoken word. All the readings from spring 2008, including Daniel Mason, Chandra and Abrams, can be enjoyed online at <http://webcast.berkeley.edu>. The 2008-09 series can be viewed at <http://storyhour.berkeley.edu/>

The Bancroft Library renovation project was completed this summer, after four years of seismic retrofitting and renovation work. The Bancroft will reopen to visitors in late 2008 in its Doe Annex location, where researchers can enjoy its expanded reading room and new gallery, and explore its vast collections of manuscripts, rare books, and unique materials.

Above, the entrance hall to the renovated Bancroft Library, one of the premier special collections libraries in the U.S. Its holdings span the globe and the centuries, with a particular focus on Western Americana. The Bancroft is home to the University Archives, as well as three research projects: the Mark Twain Papers and Project, the Regional Oral History Office, and the Center for the Tebtunis Papyri. It reopens in its renovated quarters in Doe Annex, across from the Campanile, in late 2008.

Freshmen Carine de la Girond'arc and Alina Xu's research paper on comic artist R. Crumb was created for a seminar on archival research taught at the Bancroft Library. Alina and Carine employed visual media, newspapers and magazines, and interviews with friends and contemporaries of R. Crumb to place his work in a personal and political context. "We discovered the value of creativity in conducting original research, and the immense satisfaction to be had in going out and discovering new sources of information," they say. "We learned something from every source we investigated, even those explored on a whim." The results of their wide-ranging, creative research project earned them a 2008 Library Prize for Undergraduate Research. Congratulations, Alina and Carine!

A FINAL NOTE

We have made every effort to ensure the accuracy of this listing of 2007-2008 donors. I hold a Library and Education to be almost synonymous.

Professor William Swinton, University Librarian 1869-1874

THE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

University of California, Berkeley

As the intellectual commons of the Berkeley experience, the University Library serves tens of thousands of students, faculty, and visiting scholars each year. It provides them the resources they need for exploration and new discoveries in fields spanning the sciences, arts and humanities, and social sciences, as well as the interdisciplinary explorations that are a particular strength at Berkeley. The Library is at the heart of the University's mission of teaching, research, and public service.
